Asset Management Platform

is suitable for businesses that own an instrument or equipment but do not do calibration by themselves. In partnership with Tracefii, Floyd Australia design a solution for companies who seek to manage their workflow better, stay on top of production schedules, ensure that assets maintain international quality standards, and minimize costs – all while ensuring that all the calibration due dates are met. Our key features are one of a kind and provide a single-look, quick information grasp for the users.

Features

Businesses that possess equipment but don't undertake their own calibration should use asset management software. Here are the product highlights that can benefit the management and calibration of your precious instruments

Asset health flags

Categorize assets based on their calibration due dates and health flags to be listed under Good, Warning and Danger.

Sticker QR code

Generate stickers with embedded QR codes for easy readability.

Asset Search

Search out by name or other details for assets using our asset search and cruise through with your work!

Cloud based solution

Highly agile, location independent, and a multi-tenant approach enables a faster and more reliable system for use with high accountability.

Email alerts

Stay up to date on your asset status even without logging into the application with the help of emails. A regular email check and you have everything you need.

Dynamic Fields

Traceability and budget planning

An asset management solution would provide appropriate tracking and offer historical data on budget schedules, allowing for the most efficient planning of financial interdependence. All you need to do is acquire a bird's eye perspective of your assets and arrange your budget!

Meet deadlines

When it comes to asset health, everyone understands the value of deadlines and timetables. A missing calibration might result in unneeded downtimes, which can result in massive financial losses for the parent organization.

Smooth flow of data

This system guarantees that the right flow of tracking and usage is maintained, so that suppliers to end-users and calibration laboratories do not need to make several phone calls and send multiple emails to track asset statuses and other information.

One-stop solution

Employees from different locations and teams can update and view inventory details using the asset management solution instead of utilizing many, version-less excel sheets. By doing this, they can follow an asset's movement across inventory locations without having to deal with redundant data.
